KKF/RJ1 Wednesday, 9.45-11.15, HR-UH6 | Instructor: Dr. Florin Leonte

This introductory course is designed to help students develop the basic skills for reading Ancient Greek texts: pronunciation, reading, and morphology. Participants will learn not only to analyze linguistic information but also to acquire knowledge about the Ancient Greek civilization and to place it in context. The focus will be on the most common form of Classical Greek, the language used by the textual masterpieces of the Hellenic world. Course materials that we will study are meant to encourage students to explore the connections between language and society at large.
